children thrive because of the warren center.

the warren center thrives
because of you.

“1 in every 20 children under age 3 is identified each year with mental or physical disabilities or delays.”

– The National Institutes of Health

The warren center vision has never changed. It has simply grown to accommodate the ever-growing needs

and obstacles children with developmental disabilities encounter. The children we serve face a more challenging future than most yet they still deserve a normal, active life.

What they need most is encouragement, understanding and the willingness of dedicated people to provide them with the special care they need.

Over the past 40 years, the warren center has served over 9,000 children with developmental differences in the North Texas community. The cost for therapy and necessary medical equipment can quickly add up, causing families to become overwhelmed and not allowing their children to get the help they need.

The future of the warren center heavily relies on your philanthropic donations so we can not only increase staff training and higher education, expand our program offerings and lower program costs for families, but also stay focused on the most important area that needs our attention—the children.

“There are approximately 85,000 children with developmental disabilities in the North Texas community.”

– North Central Texas Council of Governments

Developmental disabilities are a diverse group of chronic conditions that cause delay in physical, mental, communicative, emotional and social development. At the warren center, we provide professional therapeutic services to children and support to families that desperately need counseling, information and ongoing support to reduce the overwhelming physical, emotional and financial stress of caring for a special needs child.

The warren center has witnessed many of its children grow into remarkable teens and capable adults. We have seen the community come together to support the center and its programs that began as just a dream for making life better for children and families.

When you invest in the warren center, you are making the dreams of children, their families and the center come true. And you are changing lives.

“Autism is the most common, fastest-growing Developmental Disorder, affecting 1 in 150 children.”
